Previous Knowledge to be reminded	Matter waves, Heisenberg's Uncertainty principle
Topic Synopsis	Schrodinger wave equation (Time independent and time dependent) Physical singificance of wave function –Eigenfunctions, eigen values, Bohr's complimentarity principle, Particle in one dimensional infinite potential well-Energy values The particle between the two walls is constantly increasing the force on striking the particle. The constant potential energy is obtained when the particles are in the middle of the walls. It is reflected back immediately as the walls are perfectly rigid. Since the walls are perfectly rigid, the particle's energy is constant and it is the same as the energy of the particle. The particle's energy is constant and it is the same as the energy of the particle. The particle's energy is constant and it is the same as the energy of the particle. When the particle strikes any one of the walls, it is reflected back immediately as the walls are perfectly rigid. Since the walls are perfectly rigid, the particle's energy is constant and it is the same as the energy of the particle. The particle's energy is constant and it is the same as the energy of the particle. The Schrodinger wave equation for the particle is given by $\frac{d^2\psi}{dx^2} + k^2\psi = 0 \quad \text{for } 0 \leq x \leq a$ As $k^2 = 2mE/\hbar^2$, where E is the energy of the particle, the wave function ψ is given by $\psi = A \sin kx + B \cos kx$ At $x = 0$, $\psi = 0$ and at $x = a$, $\psi = 0$. These are the boundary conditions. Applying these conditions, we have $A \sin ka + B \cos ka = 0$ Since A and B are not zero, we have $\sin ka = 0$ and $\cos ka = 0$. This gives $ka = n\pi$, where n is an integer. The energy values are given by $E_n = \frac{n^2 \pi^2 \hbar^2}{8ma^2}$ where $n = 1, 2, 3, \dots$. The wave function is given by $\psi_n = \sqrt{\frac{2}{a}} \sin \frac{n\pi x}{a}$ where $n = 1, 2, 3, \dots$. The probability of finding the particle at any position x is given by $\psi ^2$. The probability is maximum at $x = a/2$ for $n = 1$ and $x = a/4$ and $3a/4$ for $n = 2$.

Learning Objectives Skill, Knowledge , Understanding	Atomic and molecular physics Introduction, Drawbacks of Bohr's atomic model, Sommerfeld's elliptical orbits -relativistic correction (no derivation). Vector atom model- quantum numbers associated with it, Stern-Gerlach experiment, Zeeman effect and its experimental arrangement. Raman effect - hypothesis, Stokes and Anti Stokes lines, Quantum theory of Raman effect, Experimental arrangement, Applications of Raman effect.
Previous Knowledge to be reminded	Raman effect - hypothesis, Stokes and Anti Stokes lines, Quantum theory of Raman effect, Experimental arrangement, Applications of Raman effect.
Topic Synopsis	STERN-GERLACH EXPERIMENT (VERIFICATION OF SPACE-QUANTIZATION CONCEPT AND ELECTRON SPIN) Experimental Arrangement In Stern and Gerlach experiment a beam of silver atom is passed through an inhomogeneous magnetic field. The silver atom beam is produced by heating silver in a small electric furnace (Fig. 13.1a) and then passing the beam through slit S_1 and S_2.  Fig. 13.1 Stern-Gerlach experiment. The inhomogeneous magnetic field is produced by using the pole pieces of the magnet that with a cylindrical groove and the other as the form of a knife edge, parallel to the groove as shown in the figure (13.1b). Thus, the magnetic field has a sharp gradient along the knife edge that is parallel to the axis of the magnet. The magnetic field converges as we go from the center towards the upper knife edge pole and decreases as we go from the center towards the lower pole. A photographic plate 'P' records the distribution of the beam after its passage through the field. In the absence of the field, the beam would have been a single horizontal line. In the presence of the field, the beam splits up into two components as shown in Fig. 13.1c. According to the classical theory, the spread of the beam in the inhomogeneous field is shown in Fig. 13.1d.  Fig. 13.1d Silver atom beam deflection in the inhomogeneous magnetic field.

CIA (Continuous Internal Assessment)

Continuous Internal Assessment (CIA) has been a quality parameter for higher education. The APCCE has devised & adopted a seamless CIA policy and issued Standard Operating Procedure to follow for CIA at all the colleges. This ensures that our students are continuously tracked and reminded of their academic performance for feedback-assisted iterative learning. Therefore, it is easy for students to complete the programme in time with good knowledge and score.

CIA evaluates student's progress throughout the course. Every student should complete at least one assignment for each unit / module, Co-curricular activities like Project work / Quiz / Field trip etc., should attend the college and participate in clean & green work and write two mid exams in every semester and the data to be maintained as per the formats. The total of 50 Marks is to be scaled down to 25 Marks.
